Elegant Days

Nestled on a leafy residential street, next to Sloane Square, and hidden behind a discreet 19th century façade, ...At Sloane reveals itself as the perfect blend of quiet British charm and curated French craftsmanship.

Unforgettable nights

Assisted by his trusted circle of exceptional French artisans, recognised architect and interior designer François-Joseph Graf has breathed new life into this elegant Victorian mansion, elevating its feel of a quaint English house to a refined and discreet hotel.

Destination for those in the know

The interior design takes inspiration from the Arts & Crafts movement; Neo-Greek accents represented by the friezes adorn the vestibule and mesmerising mosaics and vases decorate the lobby. Music seeps into every corner of the building and the signature scent infuses the air.

Bar

The intimate lower-ground floor bar has a private entrance on Holbein Place. The 'speakeasy' style open space, partitioned by Arts & Crafts mirror panelling, harmoniously combines with snug rooms. Under candlelight, guests can indulge in superb cocktails and Champagne to the sounds of the hotel's in-house DJ.

Restaurant

...At Sloane features an all-day dining restaurant located on the top floor, offering high-quality, yet unpretentious French cuisine, such as spicy lobster pasta, “pommes allumettes” and brioche caramel.

Inspired by the renowned 'Peacock Room', its stained-glass windows offer a characteristically British level of intimacy with ample natural light.
