After years studying and working around the world, Antonello Rizzello, a young entrepreneur, decides to come back to his “sleeping beauty: Nardò”.

He decides to restore his three monumental palaces, to open them to culture and to share the “beauty” with the most exacting traveller.

So, he creates the first Albergo Diffuso in Nardò, offering his guests the possibility of staying in the splendid rooms, rich of history, of the three palaces, once inhabited by numerous eminent figures of the aristocracy of the Kingdom of Naples, of the Two Sicilies and of the ecclesiastical world.

The Relais Monastero Santa Teresa, a historical monument, is a Baronial Palace of the 14th century, converted into a cloistered Monastery of the Discalced Carmelites in 1600 following the donation of Baron Sambiasi to the church.

In the early 19th century, within Napoleonic reforms transforming the Kingdom of Naples in a modern State, feudalism was abolished and all religious establishments suppressed, so the monastery also became a state property.

It was then bought by several noble families in different times, until the current owner who took it back to its former splendor.
